Five persons died of hunger in London last Wednesday, and yet what is so low there that farmers are fattening their cattle on it.

Medical experts declare that there are 6,000 ways of getting drunk. People who have tried any of them say that each way is worse than all the others.

What with the talk of restoring the duties on sugar and increasing the tax on whisky a good many old time Democrats are disposed to shake their heads and ask what kind of a Congress this is that they have elected, anyhow.

Faithful observers of political events have noticed that the Republican party is not letting go of its Protectionist principles, while a considerable section of the Democratic party is running away from the grotesque Democratic doctrine that Protection is unconstitutional.

If the views of the Democratic smashers of pensions are correct it must be that about 90 per cent. of the men who draw pensions have no claim to them. A reduction of the pension rolls by the enemies of the system means the cutting off of thousands of men who are to-day drawing pension money to which they are justly entitled.

This country now has a currency circulation of $1,414,700,000, an increase of $37,420,298 in a year; and every piece of paper in this tremendous volume of money goes for its face value without question, from the note of Texas to the last hair in the head of Maine. State bank issues, proposed by the Democrats, could not give us more currency, for gold would hide; nor would business thrive if based on a bank-note detector.

Mr. Hayward, agent of the D. Webster King Glass Company of St. Louis, said to a manufacturer of New Albany the other day that his factory was compelled to compete with English manufacturers of that article, although there was a 20 per cent. duty upon it. He stated that English manufacturers sent agents to this country, bought hides and clippings, the materials from which glue is made, shipped it to England, where it is manufactured into glue, then shipped the glue to this country, paid 20 per cent. duty, and were able to compete sharply with the American made article. If the English manufacturer of glue can do that after paying 20 per cent. duty, what could he do without duty? Glue would then probably be a little cheaper, but Uncle Sam would lose the 20 per cent. and the American workman would have to work cheaper or go out of the business, and if he went out of the business glue would be higher.

JOHN RODGERS of Portsmouth and Miss Lucy D. Howe, a highly accomplished young lady of Covington, were married Monday evening.

This trial of William Price for creating a disturbance on the streets last Sunday is set for 2 o'clock this afternoon before Mayor Pearce.

This last vestige of the old "Daulton" house in the West End is now cleared away. It was one of its first residences built in the city.

It is the Best—That is Why I Recommend it.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy gives the best satisfaction of any cough medicine I handle, and as a seller, leads all other preparations in this market. I recommend it because it is the best medicine I ever handled for coughs, colds and croup. A. W. Baldrige, Millerville, Ill. For sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

JAY GOULD "ROASTED."

A Well-Known Preacher's Estimate of the Dead Man's Millionaire.

The Rev. Ferdinand C. Iglehart, Pastor of the Park Avenue M. E. Church, New York, and son-in-law of Mrs. Mary Stewart of this city, in the course of a sermon on the character of the late Jay Gould used these strong words:

Every man has a moral face as distinct as the clay features which he wears. Jay Gould was the shell in which various vices were incased, the house where dishonest dwell. No bad man is all bad. Gould was temperate, chaste, true and devoted to his family, and in these respects to be commended. His mental brilliancy was a misfortune, for it made him more masterful in wrongdoing, and his insatiable industry was a curse, for it multiplied his power for the ruin of others.

Gould, with his $100,000, was one of the most colossal failures of our time. He was a purely selfish man. His greed consumed his charity. He was like death and hell—gathering in all evil thoughts and evil deeds. The love of money was the root of all evil to him. The motive that softened the footstep of the burglar, that nerves the arm of the highwayman, is the same that prompted Gould to break his neighbor up to build himself.

The public estimate of his life is an evidence of a beautiful public virtue. The Nation's ideals in statesmanship are Washington and Lincoln, in generosity Grant and Sherman, in poetry Longfellow and Whittier—all pure men, all unselfish men. Jay Gould is not American, a rich man. She has ideas living and dead, those who use their wealth for their families, their fellows and their kind.

It may be that Gould is the legitimate offspring of Wall street. Wall street has many honorable men and dealings, but the little Jay Goulds there are as thick as hops, who are trying themselves out at the sins of the world, who sin consists in his having outwitted them. His enormous success emphasizes the dangerous, the destructive spirit of unfair speculation.

It may be that Gould is only the natural expression of the spirit of dishonesty too prevalent in everyday life of the misrepresentation, tricks and sharp dealings in the world of finance. There are little Jay Goulds everywhere, bending over ledgers and scattered through the callings of life.

Services also Friday night, preceding. Let all the members of the Quarterly Conference be present from the beginning. Let us fast and pray Friday that God may be with us in power. Quarterly Conference Saturday.

J. R. PEARLES.

Lexington H. O. T.

The hayseed Magistrate of Fayette county have ordered the Lexington city clock run by sun time, but The Leader says the clock on St. Paul's Catholic Church steeple will still mark standard time. The Government Building clock has always marked standard time, and will continue to do so. That Courthouse clock is no good any more. It has most all over it, just like the Magistrate who want it to keep hayseed time. An act naming standard time the official time of Kentucky is now pending in the Legislature, and when adopted, as it is likely to be, the squabble in Lexington will be put to an end, notwithstanding "Squire Royser's" assertion that the Legislature has no control over Fayette county.

Another Horrible Accident.

Will people never cease monkeying with firearms? THE LEADER is called upon to record another sad death from that cause. A lad named Pugh, aged about 15 years and a grandson of Kenna Farrow, lives with the family of Jack Gillespie near Wedonia. Sunday just after noon he got hold of an old pistol and began snapping it at various members of the family. It finally went off when pointed at the head of Mr. Gillespie's five-year-old daughter, the ball entering the side of the head, resulting in death a couple of hours later. The only blame that attaches is that of carelessness; but the grief of the boy can never restore the life of the innocent child nor assuage the sorrow of the heartbroken mother and father.
